

Crawford & Company

Update: Lloyd Warwick International Limited

In March 2013, we acquired a majority interest in Lloyd Warwick International Limited (LWI). LWI is a specialist loss consulting company based in London which offers onshore and offshore energy expertise. Since the acquisition LWI has made a number of strategic moves, including opening new offices and bringing in additional experienced talent, all with our ongoing support.

In another example of synergy between the firms, I am pleased to announce that Crawford Global Markets' Senior Vice President, David Brocklehurst, will now be serving as a consultant to LWI. David is based in London and will be working to combine the specialist expertise of LWI in the energy sector—of which he has considerable experience—with the global reach and spread of Crawford & Company to provide benefits to clients of both companies.

David explains: "In a dynamic market, LWI is building up a momentum with recruitment of specialised individuals to accommodate our client requirements in this sector. With that in mind, my role will be to support LWI so that it can leverage its well-respected brand with the support of Crawford's network of services."

Commenting on our relationship, Joe McMahon, Chief Executive Officer of Lloyd Warwick International, noted that "The partnership with Crawford & Company has been hugely successful already. Our unique business model relies on providing a highly professional service delivered by individually appointed specialists. Since 2013, we have been able to maintain and grow this service with the support and networks of Crawford behind us. To have David Brocklehurst as a permanent consulting bridge between LWI and Crawford is a natural progression for us at this stage in our development."
